

Each year the White Rock Social Justice Film Society awards a bursary to a student in memory of the society's founding member, Jack McLachlan, who died on December 25, 2013. The bursary of $500 is awarded to a BC-based high school student whose submission to our essay competition is judged to be the winning entry.

This Bursary will find candidate students from Social Studies, Literature and the Arts programs.

Requirements

The White Rock Social Justice Film society exists to encourage engagement with issues of social justice through creative work such as film. Applicants are invited to submit a creative essay on the topic of social justice.

While traditional written essays (of 1000–1500 words) are welcomed, we also encourage applicants to interpret “essay” to mean any substantial creative work that addresses the topic of social justice in an insightful and motivating manner, including poems, songs, short film (no more than five minutes long), or other forms of media.

The winning submission will be made available for viewing/downloading via our website, whiterocksocialjusticefilmsociety.ca

Direct all inquiries and submissions to socialjusticefilmswr@gmail.com. Please put “Bursary 2017” in the email subject line.
